TRIMAS' CEQUENT GROUP ENFORCES PROTECTION OF INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY RIGHTS

BLOOMFIELD HILLS, Michigan, September 17, 2009 – TriMas Corporation (NASDAQ: TRS) - a diversified manufacturer of engineered and applied products – today announced that Cequent Performance Products, Inc. reached an agreement with Pacific Rim International, LLC to protect the intellectual property rights of various Cequent Bulldog® brand trailer couplers.

Earlier this year, Cequent discovered that Pacific Rim had copied the technology and infringed upon the design of the configuration of several models of Cequent's Bulldog trailer couplers. Cequent's Bulldog brand is a leading name in heavy duty couplers designed for utility, horse/livestock, cargo and construction trailer applications. The Bulldog design features a very distinctive look that has great functionality and very high acceptance in these markets. Cequent's Bulldog couplers are available in configurations to match virtually any trailer.

In response to Cequent's claims, Pacific Rim acknowledged the validity of Cequent's product configuration trademark and registration, and agreed to settle the dispute for an undisclosed amount. In addition, Pacific Rim agreed to cease all sales of the couplers in dispute no later than October 31, 2009, destroying any unsold products after this agreed-upon short sell-off period. During the sell-off period, Pacific Rim must clearly identify the manufacturer of these couplers to avoid confusion in the market place.
